er cuddly and mumsy persona has made Loose Women star

Coleen Nolan one of TV's best loved daytime presenters.

But prepare to be shocked because the mum-of-three is about to reveal a daring and raunchy side never before seen in a sizzling new novel.

We couldn't put down our copy of Denial, in shops now, and to call it a bonk-buster is an understatement! The 400-page tome is littered with startling sex scenes which will make even the most seasoned women blush.

The book features five glamorous TV hosts (sound familiar?) who get caught up in a murder scandal when the evil TV controller, responsible for their hit show Girl Talk being axed, is mysteriously murdered. Could it be kind-hearted, comfort-eater Karen King; ruthless Julia Hill who is paranoid her secret sex-change secret will come out; Champagne-swilling Lesley Gold who's married to a sexy model; feisty Cheryl West or bisexual Faye Cole?

Behind closed doors

Coleen has obviously drawn on her years of TV experience for the plotline. But friends are asking where did she get the inspiration for the steamy sex scenes, which includes one involving whips and handcuffs?

The mind boggles about what Coleen and husband Ray Fensome are getting up to behind closed doors.

A TV insider said: "It's a racy read and I kept blushing all the Dan shifted towards her. Her heart began to race. He bent and his tongue traced patterns on her breasts. She shuddered. 'You're in big, big trouble,' he said, tilting his face towards hers, his eyes narrowing. 'What for - seducing my husband? There's no law against that.' 'Maybe not.' He flipped her onto her front and gave her bottom a slap. 'Ouch,' Lesley said, secretly thrilled. 'That's for eating your breakfast in bed - again,' he said, administering another slap. 'You're a very naughty girl'...

way through it – especially at some of the kinkier stuff. It's all the more shocking because Coleen is such a sweet-natured lady, but I now see her in a completely different light.

"Who knew Coleen is such a secret sex kitten? Of all the Loose Women she's the one who says she'd rather be in bed having a cup of tea and a biscuit than a night of passion.

"What you see is what you get with Coleen. She's a great hit. But this time round she's is feeling a little bit of trepidation about how her fans will react to all of the bed-hopping in the book.

Losing her personality

The star's homely persona has increased in the past couple of years since Coleen has struggled to keep off the weight she lost when she released two fitness videos in 2008 and 2009. But Coleen has admitted she is much happier with a curvier figure than she was at her slimmest, a size 10.

She told Best: "When I was at my slimmest, when my first DVD came out, I felt great in the sense that I felt sexier and I loved the fact I had a good choice of clothes. But I'd lost some of my personality.

"A lot of people said at that time I was really quiet on Loose Women. I was anxious about the weight because I knew everyone was watching me and I had to look right. It was also because I felt I'd lost a bit of my, 'I don't give a s***' attitude, which I think makes me a happier person."

But the star vowed she won't let herself get too big and was already watching what she ate and exercising more.

"I don't want to go back up to a size 20," she confessed.

Loose Women's shock shake-up

Presenters devastated over TV award loss

When This Morning beat the Loose Women to the coveted title of best topical magazine show, at last month's National Television Awards, their faces said it all. Head girl Carol McGiffin looked furious, as Sherrie Hewson and Kate Thornton desperately tried to fix their faces to false joy for the rival ITV1 show.

It was a shock for the mouthy women, who are used to scooping awards as effortlessly as they lambast men folk on the daily talk show.

So unhappy about losing out, they barely stayed at the glamorous Champagne-fuelled after-show party at London's O2 Arena.

Fans have complained on forums that the girls have lost their edge. Loyal viewers have criticised the departure or lesser roles given to their favourite presenters, including Lynda Bellingham and Jane McDonald.

It was a different story last year when they grabbed the award from popular shows such as The Apprentice and Top Gear.

"They're worried it's a sign their popularity is waning, as it's the public who vote for the NTAs," said a TV insider.

"There's a feeling among them that recently the show has been a bit off the boil.

"Expect more hilarious stunts like the old days and passionate rows over controversial topics."

"They won't be down for long," added our insider. "They are determined to take that trophy home again next year."
